

IN THE MAUI COUNTY SCHOOLS

Pretty Close Of Wm. & Mary Alexander School

Mrs. Alice S. Pillans' School entertains parents and friends.

The closing exercises of the William and Mary Alexander School of which Mrs. Pillans is the principal were given last Saturday evening to a large and enthusiastic audience of parents and friends. Mrs. Hansen of Haiku, the Rev. Henry Judd of Honolulu, and Dr. and Mrs. Tate of Lahaina were special guests at a school dinner which preceded the exercises.

The work of Mrs. Pillans and the fine progress manifested by the pupils has been a topic of favorable comment among the friends of the school for some time and the program presented Saturday evening by the scholars was a revelation as well as a delight to the parents present. The exercises were splendidly given and represented to some extent the work of the school during the year.

It was not a specially arranged program but a reproduction rather of a school session. Mrs. Pillans' theory in teaching is to train the child in self-expression and the total lack of self-consciousness and the healthy spirit in which the children partook of the games and recited their pieces was a subject of commendation. There is increased interest in the school and next year's enrollment will probably exceed that of former years. Applications have been received from places as far distant as Lahaina.

At the close of the exercises punch and cookies were served to pupils, parents and friends. The exercises were given out in the open air on the school grounds, which were decorated with colored lanterns. An object of interest was the representation of an Indian wigwam used by the children in rendering Hiawatha. The complete program follows:

THE ATTRACTIVE SCHOOLROOM

By Vaughan MacCaughy.

In my visits to schools in various parts of the Territory, I have been particularly impressed by the large number of attractive schoolrooms. I am referring now to the pictures, decorations and other ornaments prepared by the teachers and pupils themselves. In some rooms all of the pictures are framed in mountings of wood, lauhala, cardboard, etc., that the pupils themselves have made. Cabinets of natural history objects occur in other rooms. Home-like curtains at the windows, made and stencilled by the girls, often give the room a cheerful atmosphere. Pictures and friezes upon the upper portions of the blackboard, in colored chalk, are noted here and there. Some rooms take pride in exhibiting their primary handwork, paper modelling, and colored maps. Of special note are the many pictures, cut from magazines, representing great Americans and great scenes in American history. Charts of animals, birds, flowers, and agricultural subjects are also perennial sources of interest.

Hawaii can well be proud of her many attractive schoolrooms. The schoolroom is the intellectual cradle of Hawaii's future. The atmosphere of joy, of cheerful homeliness, of spontaneous activity, is a schoolroom's greatest asset. This means happiness and good schoolwork.
